INTELLIFLO LAUNCHES INTERMEDIARY SEMINAR PROGRAMME

Award-winning front and back office solution firm IntelliFlo confirms dates for its first intermediary breakfast seminars. As well as demonstrating the latest product features, including NIO, Next Intelligent Office is a major new enhancement which will improve the user interface new functionality such as portfolio rebalancing and fund research making Intelligent Office even quicker and more responsive. The seminars will also tackle current industry issues, along with outlining the importance of the use of technology for enhancing business efficiencies – vital in the current challenging environment.

Commenting, Chief Executive Nick Eatock said:

“As one of the industry’s fastest growing solutions, Intelligent Office offers intermediaries a strong and reliable technology product which is crucial in today’s market. We have launched this programme of seminars to prospective clients to showcase Intelligent Office and demonstrate how technology can assist in running a more efficient and better business. We have had a very encouraging response to these events – a clear illustration that people are increasingly looking to technology, especially in difficult climates, to make their business processes more efficient and ultimately more profitable.”
